DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The specification and figures do not appear to disclose that the sleeve is “fixedly attached” to the hub as required by the claims. The phrase “fixedly attached” implies it is a separate element that is then fixed or attached to the hub. However, it appears that the sleeve is actually integrally machined from the hub as a one-piece unit based on the figures and Applicant’s arguments on page 8 of the most recent response.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hsieh (6,554,478) in view of Shy.

Hsieh discloses a device comprising a hub seat 10, bearing 31, shaft 41, and hub 40. Portions 12 and 21 cooperate to form a multi-diameter sleeve that is fixedly attached to the center of the hub seat. Middle section 21 has a larger diameter than lower section 12 such that a shoulder is formed. The shaft has a first end contacting a durable pad 24, a neck part 42 that engages an engaging piece 63, and a second end joined to the hub. The engaging piece sits on the shoulder formed by portion 12 of the sleeve. The bearing is disposed next to the shoulder and forms an oil storage part 34 with the middle section of the sleeve. Hsieh does not disclose a central annular recess in the hub surrounding the shaft and fitted with the head end of the sleeve. Shy teaches a device having a hub seat, hub, bearing, shaft, and sleeve. The hub has an annular recess (see Fig. 3 or at 11) surrounding the shaft. The sleeve cooperates with the recess to prevent oil leakage (col. 5, lines 23-27). Therefore, it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the hub with the recess taught by Shy to provide additional leakage prevention.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 4 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Hsieh discloses a sleeve that is considered "integral" (in that it's connected as a unit) as well as "fixedly attached" to the hub seat. There is nothing in the claims preventing the sleeve from being a separate element from the hub seat. Further, it is also known that a multi-diameter sleeve can be integrally machined with the hub seat as a one-piece structure as evidenced by Shingai.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

7. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
